ABSTRAK

The writing of this paper aims to show the results of research on the role of Christian counselors in guiding early adolescents who experience heartache to their parents due to a less secure economy in GITJ Margokerto based on the theory of Charles R. Gerber. As for the background of this research is at the research site, namely in GITJ Margokerto (Jepara), there are teenagers who experience heart bitterness to parents because of the less secure economic conditions that have not been guided by the role of Christian counselors according to Charles R. Gerber's theory. Because many adolescents experience heart bitterness to parents due to a less secure economy, the researchers provide guidance to them by using the role of Christian counselors according to the theory of Charles R. Gerber. Using twenty-three principles summarized into theory of Charles R. Gerber. Using Twenty-Three principles summarized into ten roles can have a positive impact on the counselee, namely a change in behavior that can be seen through the results of the pre-test and post-test. This study uses a case study research method according to Creswell. This study uses qualitative data so that it is included in qualitative research.
